With Only Belaying Pin For Weapon, Schooner's Master Controls His Men

How Capt. Emil E. Piltz of the twomest schooner Luka brought the tittle ship and $10,000 in her strong box home safe to her owner, Judge Henry E. Cooper, is this week the talk of Armed with nothing more than the Control of the state of ever-reliable belaying pin and single handed the captain stood off for days a crew which had openly threatened to murder him. That he brought the vessel in without even the protection of a pistol is a wonder to old salts around the piers.

The captain's hair was brown when he left Honolulu one the ninth of last December; when he arrived Saturday it was quite gray. But if the old ship master who has been in these waters now for 40 years was a true hero of the seas he had two worthy associates, his dog Sweetheart, and a Hawalian sailor, Andrew Kalehua, a young fellow who remained true to his captain in the face of a threat of death. Went to Buy Copra

The scuthern trip was for the purpose of buying copra. The Luka's hold is good for 70 tons of the profitable cargo and 2000 one-pound English gold pieces were in the cabin for trading purposes. The Tahitian mate, Matuu, who tried to kill the captain and get the gold, is now in Penrhyn, and a Filipino, Nicholas Bilbea, who is alleged to have been implicated in the plot, is under arrest in Honolulu, as told in the late news-columns of the Star-Bulletin yesterday.

When the captain left he had a crew of six, the Hawaiian boy, three Koreans, one a cook and the other two 162 1/2 Sailors; the Filipino, and Matuu, the 21% mate, who had been with the Luka for about three years, first as a cook. In the latter capacity he had also served Capt, Piltz at his home at Makena, Maui, where the captain has now gone to visit his wife and three

From here the Luka headed due south, touching in turn at Fanning, Penrhyn, Rakahanga, Hanahiki and Raratonga. The last named island lies in the Cook group about 2500 miles south of Oahu in latitude 21.12 south and longitude 159.52 west. It was here that all the trouble started. Crew Learns of Gold

The Luka stood propped up high in the air in the Inter-Island drydock for general repairs and cleaning up as the captain sat in his little cabin yester-Botween Beards: Sales: 15 Olas, 14.75;

He started in California but most of his life has been in the south.

At Raratonga, Capt. Piltz tried to get a license from the British government to buy copra but falled on account of the war, but he declares he will try again. To make matters worse, Matuu beat him up when taken to task for disobedience and then deserted with all of the crew but the Hawaiian boy. British authorities brought the men back to the ship. Matuu then accidentally learned of the 2000 gold pieces in the cabin and immediately laid plans to do away with

Ignorant of this state of affairs'and disappointed in having to go home with an empty hold, Capt. Piltz hove to and started north. January 28 he first learned his perilous position on Matuu Brandishes Knife
